

Corporate Liability: Work Related Deaths and Criminal Prosecutions

Third Edition

General Editor: Gerard Forlin QC

Editor: Louise Smail

With specialist contributors

Corporate Liability: Work Related Deaths and Criminal Prosecutions, Third Edition

Edition is the only book to provide, in a single source, an expert analysis of the legal practice and procedure in this area.

With detailed, industry-by-industry guidance on how to comply with health and safety laws, this practical handbook addresses the specific challenges faced by corporations operating in the contemporary risk climate.

This third edition thoroughly examines corporate liability in the following sectors:

- The construction industry
- Transport
- The chemical industry
- Healthcare
- Waste management
- Environmental liability
- Local authorities

Comprehensive coverage of corporate manslaughter in Ireland and Scotland is accompanied by significantly expanded commentary on international perspectives.

New chapters

This fully updated edition also features new chapters on the media, sport, emergency services and travel. Relevant legislation is referenced throughout, including the Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Act 2013, the Corporate Manslaughter and Corporate Homicide Act 2007 and the Coroners and Justice Act 2009.

'General Editor Gerard Forlin QC, Louise Smail and the specialist contributors are to be congratulated on producing an up-to-date and accessible work which covers all aspects of the subject.'

The Hon. Mr Justice Burnett President of the Health and Safety Lawyers' Association

Who should buy this book?

This book offers indispensable advice for regulatory and compliance officers and advisors, health and safety advisors and in-house counsel. It is also a useful resource for regulatory organisations, local authorities, legal practitioners and courts and judges involved in the prosecution and defence of corporate manslaughter and health and safety cases.

About the editors

Gerard Forlin QC, General Editor, of Cornerstone Barristers in London, Denman Chambers in Sydney and Maxwell Chambers in Singapore was educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge and LSE. He specialises in corporate and gross negligence manslaughter, health and safety and other regulatory fields and has lectured, practised and consulted in more than 40 countries. Gerard has acted in over 250 fatality cases and 150 inquests in the UK and abroad, appearing in many of the pivotal cases in the last 15 years. He has been described by Chambers & Partners as 'Mr Manslaughter'. He is also Vice Chair of the Health and Safety Lawyers' Association.

Louise Smail, Editor, has extensive experience in the field of risk management with a wide range of organisations. She was previously principal consultant and director of two international consulting groups and now runs her own consultancy, Ortalan, where she works on high profile projects looking at business risk evaluation.

Louise is the consultant editor for the Health and Safety at Work newsletter (Bloomsbury Professional).
