WELCOME TO THE BLOOMSBURY PROFESSIONAL SCOTS LAW AND TAXATION 2019 CATALOGUE.

Throughout 2018 we continued to provide essential and authoritative guidance required by Scotland’s legal professionals and students. In 2018 we were delighted to publish some excellent new editions including:

- The Scottish Legal System Sixth edition by Megan Dewart (previously by MacQueen, White & Willock).
- Social Work Law in Scotland Fourth edition by Tom Guthrie.
- Wheatley’s Road Traffic Law in Scotland Sixth edition by Andrew Brown.

In addition to regular updates to our trusted looseleafs, The Court of Session Practice, The Scottish Older Client Law Service and Personal Injury Damages in Scotland our 2019 publishing schedule contain some important new editions including:

- Oil and Gas Law in the UK Second edition by Moe Alramahi.
- Employment Law in Scotland Second edition by Sam Middlemiss and Margaret Downie.
- Conveyancing Practice in Scotland Eighth edition by Ann Stewart and Euan Sinclair.

Our Scottish Law Service provides instant access to content from Scotland’s leading experts in all key areas of practice. This is the ideal online resource for firms of solicitors who are looking for a full digital library of authoritative titles covering all areas of Scots Law. Many of our titles are not available online anywhere else, including Reed & Murdoch: Human Rights Law in Scotland and Thomson: Family Law in Scotland.

For further information visit bloomsburyprofessionalscotland.com and free trials of the service can be arranged by emailing scotslaw@bloomsbury.com.

We continue to be the only publisher to provide an online service tailored specifically to meet the needs of the Scottish tax practitioner. Our Scottish tax titles included in this service are Land and Buildings Transaction Tax, Inheritance Tax in Scotland, Trusts and Estates in Scotland and The Management of Taxes in Scotland. Our easy to use online service is updated throughout the year at no extra cost. For further information visit www.bloomsburytax.com/scottishtaxservice and free trials of the service can be arranged by emailing scottishtax@bloomsbury.com.

We look forward to continuing to look after your information needs over the year ahead and beyond. I would be delighted to hear from you should you have any comments on our titles or indeed would like be become a Scots law or taxation author. Please do get in touch.

Paula O’Connell, Managing Editor (Scotland).

Dear colleague

This year we have created separate catalogues for each of our four main businesses: Law; Tax and Accounting; Ireland and Scotland.

Within each you will find plenty of well-established and industry-leading titles as well as many new and exciting publications that we are delighted to bring to the market.

Unlike some of our competitors, our titles are written by practitioners: people dealing with clients every day and applying the latest regulation to resolve real issues.

In today’s uncertain climate it is important that the advice you give to your own clients is clear and practical: our titles help you to achieve that goal.

2019 sees us continue to develop our online services across the portfolio and if you have not already taken a look or trialled our online services I would urge you to do so. All four businesses have their own bespoke online services which can be scaled up from one to 1,000+ users.

Our publishing programme is constantly evolving and what you see within these pages is a snapshot of what is available in Spring 2019. To ensure you receive the very latest information on our titles and their availability you can sign up to a number of social media services via our website at www.bloomsburyprofessional.com/uk/.

I hope you enjoy perusing the catalogue.

Greg Kilminster
Managing Director

WELCOME TO THE BLOOMSBURY PROFESSIONAL ONLINE SECTION OF THE 2019 CATALOGUE

Someone asked me the other day what I thought the most important trend in publishing had been over the last few years. So far as online is concerned, it was an easy question to answer. Undoubtedly the most notable trend over the last few years has been that more and more users are searching for and reading professional information on their smartphones.

Let me say from the outset that, as someone who was born in the middle of the last century, I still tend to think of the telephone, mobile or otherwise, as a device for making and receiving phone calls. In that, as in so many other respects, I am completely wrong, of course. A modern smartphone is as powerful as a desktop computer and, in this age of ultra high res screens, may even provide a better reading experience, even for these tired old eyes. I can still hear myself pontificating to some poor unfortunate a few years ago that I would never read a book on a mobile phone, the very idea was ridiculous. But here we are a few years later, and now my phone is my primary platform for reading, news, YouTube, LinkedIn and so on.

So, for readers who have yet to try Bloomsbury Professional’s online services on their mobile, I commend it to your attention. The mobile site is at the same location as the desktop version (www.bloomsburyprofessionalonline.com) and your current username and password will work there too. Obviously, on a palm-sized device we have to change the user interface a bit so you may find it somewhat unfamiliar at first, but the search box is still there at the top right of the screen and you should find the search speed whether on wi-fi or a decent mobile signal just as fast as the desktop site.

I suppose a perfectly valid question would be why would anyone want to read professional information on their phone? Many of us spend the greater part of the day at desks looking at computer screens which deliver some kind of information, verbal or numeric, to our aching eyes and minds. Why continue to read that stuff when you’re on the train, or in the bath, or out and about at any of those places where you might use your phone? I will duck answering the question directly but refer instead to a testimonial video that Colin Corrigan of Corrigan & Co made for our users in ICAEW regulated firms. Colin makes the point in the film that since the Bloomsbury Professional service had been made available to his firm, there had been a general rise in interest and learning across his users as they became more adept at finding answers for themselves. That was an extremely gratifying thing to hear. Some might say that one of the signs of a good reference work is the extent to which it catches your eye with something interesting unrelated to your original query. Whether it’s the copyright status of a certain kind of popular plastic shoe or whether or not it is possible to reclaim input tax on a wig (clue: search for “wild man”) those idle moments, waiting for a bus, or a friend, or just a break in the weather, may be enjoyably and divertingly spent on your mobile, reading the expert guidance on a myriad of technical subjects from Bloomsbury Professional’s unrivalled team of authors.

Scottish Tax Service

£520 (for up to 5 users)

Practitioners who have clients based in Scotland or with interest there need to have a clear understanding of both Scottish and UK tax regimes that are deceptively alike but dangerously different. This is the only online service dedicated to Scottish taxes and is the best way of keeping up to date with Scotland’s unique and evolving tax regime.

Updated throughout the year at no extra cost, Bloomsbury Professional’s Scottish Tax Service includes:

• an analysis of the powers, duties and responsibilities of Revenue Scotland and the administration of devolved taxes by Charlotte Barbour, Director of Taxation at ICAS

• a comprehensive and clear guide to the brand new tax, Land and Buildings Transaction Tax, by Ken Wright, Executive Director with Ernst & Young

• authoritative guidance of the complexities of Scotland’s unique trusts and estates regime by Alexander Garden, Partner at Turcan Connell and Simon Mackintosh, Chairman of Turcan Connell

• a clear explanation of how inheritance tax operates in Scotland with ever-increasing compliance challenges by Fiona McDonald, Partner Fyfe McDonald Solicitors

Personal Injury Damages in Scotland

Practitioners who have clients based in Scotland or with interest there need to have a clear understanding of both Scottish and UK tax regimes that are deceptively alike but dangerously different. This is the only online service dedicated to Scottish taxes and is the best way of keeping up to date with Scotland’s unique and evolving tax regime.
Updated throughout the year at no extra cost, Bloomsbury Professional’s Scottish Tax Service includes:
• an analysis of the powers, duties and responsibilities of Revenue Scotland and the administration of devolved taxes by Charlotte Barbour, Director of Taxation at ICAS
• a comprehensive and clear guide to the brand new tax, Land and Buildings Transaction Tax, by Ken Wright, Executive Director with Ernst & Young
• authoritative guidance of the complexities of Scotland’s unique trusts and estates regime by Alexander Garden, Partner at Turcan Connell and Simon Mackintosh, Chairman of Turcan Connell
• a clear explanation of how inheritance tax operates in Scotland with ever-increasing compliance challenges by Fiona McDonald, Partner Fyfe McDonald Solicitors
